Description

many new quassel users might be old weechat users. that's why an import of old weechat log files would be nice.

receipient can be reconstructed via the filename, timestamp is available at the beginning of each line, senders and messages can be reconstructed actions can also be reconstructed:

joins look like this:

2006 Aug 26 12:22:33 --> son (son@localhost) has joined #horndogg-community

2006 Aug 23 19:28:08 --> vito (vito@localhost) has joined #horndogg-community

~~2006 Oct 06 15:53:54 ← phon has kicked Sput from #horndogg-community (phon)~~

/me actions look like this:

2006 Oct 06 16:03:12 -* KrokerdilBot reicht phon eine Banane rüber

i know that this has no priority at all - and though i wouldn't really need it, i still think that many potential users would like this feature. so if it's not too hard ... otherwise just close this feature request :-)

History

#1 - 02/25/2008 11:18 PM - EgS

This one could be implemented with a pretty simple import script. Personally I don't like to integrate it into Quassel itself.

Only downside: the SqliteStorage backend isn't really helpful when it comes to concurrent access. aka: the core would need to be offline. :/

#2 - 03/05/2010 03:52 AM - johu

- OS set to Any

my vote for this feature request is contra because of:

- there are x million other irc client and we should not prefer a special one
- can corrupt core storage
