| The topic shown in tooltips in bufferviews should be stripped to not include any color-codes.                                      |                |                        |           |
| Currently, they display as something like a square followed by the digits and two trailing backslashes which is not useful at all. |                |                        |           |

Will be much easier with the new styleengine (aka sputdev branch), since that provides easily accessible plaintext :)

No more topic tooltip.
